MURRY'S NEW EXTRA EARLY TOMATO

The Only Extra Early Tomato Without a Fault And the Best Money Maker of All Tomatoes

In vine growth it is something on the order of the Earlianna, but much more vigorous and hardy than that variety, with slightly more foliage, which protects the fruit much better from sun-scald, which affects the Earlianna very badly on extremely hot days. This tomato has never been known to blight, and ripens more fruit of first setting at one time (when tomatoes are high in price) than any early tomato that I have ever grown or seen grown, and I have been growing early tomatoes for the early market for over forty years. This tomato, grown in repeated trials with the very best strains obtainable of the Earlianna and John Baer, under the same ideal conditions, has always ripened more fruit earlier and of far better quality than either of them. Plants of Murry's Extra Early set this season in my trial grounds, May 10th, began ripening fruit June 20th, and continued bearing until killed by frost in Oct. There is no tomato on earth (early or late) that will bear as heavy a crop throughout the entire season as this tomato will. In size, it runs much larger than other first earlies and is always perfectly smooth, no matter what the weather may be (wet or dry). All the fruit is solid and smooth at all times. As to flavor, it has no equal. Once a grower of this wonderful tomato, always a grower, has become a truism. Plant Murry's Extra Early this year and you will not be disappointed.
